HONGKONG, JANUARY 24TH, 1913.

PEACE in the Balkans is at last in sight. We publish to-day the telegraphic information that the Porte has resolved to place itself in the hands of the Powers, and is informing the Powers to-day of its acquiescence in their proposals regarding Adrianople and the Aegean Islands. The Powers, it will be remembered, advised the Porte to cede Adrianople, and leave the Powers to decide the fate of the Aegean Islands. The loss of Adrianople is a bitter pill for Turkey to swallow. Next to Constantinople it is the most important City of the Empire, and Turkey has been especially anxious to retain it because the City contains the mosques of the caliphs, and its conquest or cession would "ruin the prestige of Islam." It has been further pointed out that Adrianople is the gate of Constantinople and its loss would endanger the existence of the Empire. But there are two ways of losing Adrianople, and the Powers have clearly intimated their opinion to Turkey that a prolongation of the war would jeopardise Constantinople and probably extend hostilities to the Asiatic provinces. The Bulgarians have been confident in the ultimate success of their efforts to take the City, and the nature of the advice given by the Powers to Turkey is an indication that they, also, share that conviction.

The surrender of the ancient city, founded in the second century A.D. by the Emperor HADRIAN, and once the capital of the Ottoman Empire, is admittedly a great triumph for the Bulgarians. It is not the first time in history that Adrianople has surrendered to an invading army. In the campaign of 1829, so disastrous to the Turks, Adrianople surrendered to the Russians without making any resistance, but it was restored after the treaty of peace had been definitively signed, and possibly it is with some hopes that this experience will be repeated that Turkey very reluctantly consents now to its surrender to her present enemies. However that may be, the fact that she accepts the advice of the Powers with regard to Adrianople and the Aegean Islands, makes possible a resumption of peace negotiations with every prospect of a settlement of the whole problem. There are many difficult questions between the Allies themselves which will have to be settled, and on some of these the Powers themselves will probably have difficulty in maintaining the unanimity they have so far shown. A hopeful sign is the spirit of compromise evidenced in the proposals emanating from the various States. What M. POINCARÉ some weeks ago described as one of the chief causes of European discord has apparently been eliminated by the agreement that the autonomy of Albania constituted under the suzerainty of the SULTAN shall be under the supervision of the Great Powers, and that a port on Albanian territory shall be opened to Servia but that it shall be free and neutral and served by an international railway under the same supervision. Turkey by the peace settlement must inevitably lose a very great part of her European territory, possibly nine-tenths of it—but as M. POINCARÉ declared in the speech to which we have alluded, she will still have a flourishing Empire of considerable extent in Asia, and "she ought to concentrate her efforts and her hopes upon that Empire, a course which would enable her to live on terms of friendship with the great European Powers, and particularly with France." While the British Government has declared to France, "in a very friendly manner," that it has neither political designs nor aspirations of any kind in those regions, France claims to have special interests there, and M. POINCARÉ has announced that the French Government is very firmly determined to maintain in Asia the integrity of the Ottoman Empire. That, of course, is all to the advantage of Turkey. In all probability had the war been fought to a finish the SULTAN would have been driven out of Europe completely, but as it is, assuming that the Allies are left by the peace treaty in the enjoyment of the territories they now hold by force majeure, the SULTAN will retain in Europe an area of about 7,000 square miles out of the 65,000 square miles over which his sovereignty extended before the outbreak of the war. But as Turkey comprises in Asia an area of 682,960 square miles, and in Africa 733,181 square miles, there will still remain to the SULTAN an Empire equalling in extent the Empire of Germany with all its extensive colonies in Africa, and its 96,000 square miles of islands in the Pacific.

H.E. the Governor left by the s.s. Kinsan for Canton last night and is expected to return to-day.

The Hughes Comedy Company had another large audience before them last night when they repeated "The Spectators."

The lengthy hearing of the Li will case before the Appeal Court was brought to a close yesterday. Another appeal will be heard to-day.

The body of the shop coolie whose mysterious disappearance was reported a few days ago, has been found in the harbour at Tsam Tui Po.

As a lady was walking along D'Aguilar Street yesterday a small boy snatched her handbag, which contained $2 in money, keys, and important papers.

The coxswain of the Atlanta reports that one of the crew, a youth aged about 22, was drowned off Blackhead's Point. The body has not yet been recovered.

THE BANK-NOTE CASE.

FURTHER EVIDENCE AT THE MAGISTRACY.

The hearing of the charges against eight Japanese of being in possession of a large amount of forged Kwangtung notes was continued at the Magistracy yesterday before Mr. C. D. Melbourne. The name of a Chinese was added to the defendants in the case.

Taw Yue Shek, a cashier at the Canton Mint, examined many of the notes, and declared that, with the exception of one small bundle, they were all forged.

An Inland Tax collector also gave evidence, and the case was again remanded.

THE POKFULAM MURDER.

ACCUSED COMMITTED FOR TRIAL.

Before Mr. Hazelard at the Magistracy yesterday Mo Kwai, a Chinese cowboy, was charged with the murder of an ex-Jemadar of Police named Gulab at Pokfulam.

Mr. P. M. Hodgson (Assistant Crown Solicitor) conducted the prosecution, and Mr. R. C. Faithfull, solicitor, defended. Charagh Din, a Jemadar of Police, said that he knew the deceased and identified his body at the Mortuary.

Dr. Harold Macfarlane, medical officer in charge of the Mortuary, deposed that he made a post-mortem examination of the deceased. The cause of death was multiple injuries. The head was severed from the body. There was a flap of skin at the back of the neck, as if more than one blow had been delivered.

Aft r Inspector Dymond had given evidence, the defendant was committed to take his trial at the next Criminal Sessions.

THE RECENT P. & O. TIN CASE.

At the Magistracy yesterday mention was again made of the case in which two Chinese were charged with the theft of slabs of tin from a P. & O. steamer.

His Worship told Mr. R. F. C. Master (for the prosecution) that there was not sufficient evidence to justify the case going before a jury, and asked if he had other witnesses to call.

Thereupon L.S. Wills stated that the charges would be withdrawn, and Mr. P. X. D'Almada, who defended, asked for the discharge of his clients, and his Worship accordingly allowed them to go.

THE MAGISTRACY.

A boy who had been convicted twice previously was charged before Mr. Hazelard with being in unlawful possession of a door mat, which he stated he found on the Race-course. As he was too young to be punished, he was ordered to receive 12 strokes with the birch.

Three Chinese were charged before Mr. C. D. Melbourne with committing an assault on three women. It was stated that the defendants hired the complainants' sampan to go to a stone boat, and on the way a conflict took place, in the course of which one of the men drew a knife. Defendants alleged that the quarrel occurred over the fare. His Worship fined them $10 each, or in default 14 days' hard labour.

Six men were charged before Mr. Hazelard with printing and publishing lottery tickets and also with having tickets in their possession. Seven men originally were charged, but the case against one of them, the cook, was withdrawn. His Worship said he purposed convicting the whole of the men, and he imposed a fine of $250 on one defendant and $25 each on the others. Inspector Dymond said the offence was becoming quite common.

A Chinese was walking along Des Vœux Road when he espied a likely means of pecuniary advantage in the person of an unexpecting Indian, from whose pocket a $25 note was protruding. He went up to the man, and, after spitting on his coat, added "injury to insult" by deftly appropriating the money. However, the Chinese was quickly captured by an alert Indian constable, and he appeared in consequence before Mr. Melbourne yesterday. Inspector Fenton stated that the man had been proceeded against on a similar charge previously and his Worship said he now recognised the man's face. He was sentenced to three months' hard labour and four hours' stocks.

PEACE IN SIGHT.

THE TERRITORIAL DEMANDS.

Montenegro demands Skutari, Ipek and Djakova, but not Prizrend. Serbia proposes as a natural Albanian-Servian frontier the watershed between the Adriatic and Lakes Presha and Ochrida.

TURKEY'S FINANCIAL STRAITS.

A message from Constantinople states that extreme financial penury prevails, the salaries for December not having been paid yet.

FURKISH ATTITUDE WEAKENING.

Reuter's correspondent at Constantinople wires that the meeting of the Grand Council was adjourned until Wednesday. The general impression is that the attitude of the Government towards the Allies' demands is weakening.

The Grand Council met at the Domabagtsche Palace. It is understood that the Council decided in favour of accepting the Note from the Powers for the conclusion of peace. Eighty notable personages were invited to the Council, including most of the Senators, under-secretaries, and ecclesiastical dignitaries of Islam.

PEACE IN SIGHT.

A message from Constantinople states that a Note will be handed to the Powers to-morrow in which the Government places itself in the hands of the Powers and agrees to their proposals with regard to Adrianople and the Aegean Islands.

The Grand Council's decision was almost unanimous, and was arrived at after only a slight discussion. The Government frankly declared in favour of the acceptance of the Powers' advice.

The delegates of the Allies in London are satisfied with Turkey's decision, though they point out that important questions including the payment of an indemnity in proportion to the Ottoman debt assumable to the Allies and the question of railways must be concluded before peace is signed.

A later message from Constantinople states that it believed that the Note in reply to the Powers will not be a straight forward acceptance, but will probably attempt to make reservations leading to further discussion. However, with the question of Adrianople settled in principle it is not likely that the early conclusion of peace will be delayed.

The Grand Vizier, Nazim Pasha, the Minister of Finance, and Noradunghian spoke in the Grand Council.

Nazim Pasha said that the army was eager to fight, though there was little chance of recovering Salonika and Monastir, or even of relieving Adrianople, but other questions besides military militated against the continuation of hostilities.

The Minister of Finance explained the dependence of the Treasury upon the foreign markets.

Noradunghian said there was little hope of European complications and emphasised the attitude of Russia, which had recently twice warned the Porte that the continuation of hostilities might compel her to depart from neutrality.

DISSATISFACTION IN GERMANY.

A Berlin telegram reports that the Press is attacking the Government for surrendering to the Triple Entente in extorting the surrendering of Turkey, which it attributes to Russian threats to invade the Asiatic vilayets.

BULGARIA AND ROUMANIA.

Reuter learns that Bulgaria has agreed to cede to Roumania territory on the coast southward from Mangalia, which will be made a naval base. Up till the present this has not been feasible owing to the proximity of the frontier. This cession removes the chief difficulty in the way of a settlement between the two countries.

BULGARIA SEEKING A LOAN.

M. Theodoroff, the Bulgarian Minister of Finance, has arrived in London for the purpose of sounding financial circles with a view to an impending loan mainly for various enterprises arising out of the new situation.

GREEKS AGGRESSIVE AT JANINA.

The Greeks have commenced the attack on Bizani, the key to Janina.

A message from Athens states that according to the official report the artillery attack on Bizani began at eight o'clock on Tuesday morning along the entire front and continued till six o'clock in the evening. The Turks replied freely. A general advance followed, and the Greeks dislodging the Turks from their outlying positions the enemy fled in disorder towards Bizani.

THE NAVAL "BATTLE."

The facts of the naval engagement have become known. It appears that encouraged by the reports of the Hamidieh's success the Turkish commander ventured southward of Tenedos, but began to retire slowly immediately the Greeks were sighted. The Turks fired over 500 shells and claim to have inflicted much damage, though they themselves suffered severely. The battleships Assar-i-Tewfik and the Torgat Reis were badly hit. A shell exploded in the turret of the Torgat Reis, everyone in the turret being either killed or wounded. Both guns were disabled, and altogether 4 officers and 36 men were killed and 164 wounded.

THE "HAMIDIEH'S" VENTURE.

A message from Port Said states that the Turkish battleship Hamidieh after leaving Syria proceeded to Beirut, where, on sighting a cruiser, probably the German cruiser Breslau, which she took for a Greek, cut her anchor and left at full speed, sighting on Saturday evening two destroyers who are supposed to be the Greek destroyers freed from Port Said.

BRITISH PARLIAMENTARY BUSINESS.

LONDON, January 23rd.

In the House of Commons, on Tuesday, Mr. Asquith said he hoped the House would conclude the Disestablishment of the Church in Wales and the Franchise Bills by the 12th February. He thought they should also be able to carry through the Trades Union and Railway Bills, the latter in fulfilment of their pledge to the companies during the railway strike. He suggested that these bills should be taken after 10.30 in the evening, when the guillotine had fallen. Then possibly the House would rise on the 19th February till the 13th March. If the suggestion was not adopted the session would be prolonged.

Mr. Bonar Law vigorously opposed the proposal.

THE ANTI-PROTECTIONIST MOVEMENT IN BRITAIN.

LONDON, January 23rd.

An influential meeting took place in the City on Tuesday night presided over by Lord Avebury, and attended by Lord Balfour of Burleigh, the Right Hon. C. T. Ritchie, Lord Incheape, and the Right Hon. Sir Edgar Speyer. A resolution was passed in favour of Free Trade and declaring that Tariff Reform, which was only another name for Protection, was fraught with grave political and economic dangers to the Empire.

BRITISH GOVERNMENT EMBARRASSED.

LONDON, January 23rd.

Though it is authoritatively stated that there is no question of Ministers resigning on the suffrage question, it is admitted that the embarrassment of the Government is increasing. Besides the excessive "lobbying" in which even Ministers are active, many M.P.'s have received threatening letters. It is stated that many will be absent from the division. Many Radicals also are angry at the possibility of women suffrage being passed under the Parliament Act. The feeling is growing that the Bill may be replaced by the Plural Voting Bill.

The thieves were disturbed when they had almost drilled through the safe, and decamped, leaving their apparatus weighing half a ton, including twelve gas cylinders, blow pipes, batteries, etc. It is a mystery how the thieves entered the premises unnoticed.

AUSTRALIA AND IMPERIAL DEFENCE.

LONDON, January 23rd.

Reuter's correspondent at Melbourne telegraphs that Mr. Purce, the Minister for Defence, said he thought there was a necessity at present for the appointment of an Australian Minister on the Imperial Defence Committee, because the Australian policy, as was known, had the approval of the Admiralty, and that policy differed from that of the other Dominions, as in addition to building ships it provided men. The Government were of the opinion that it was advantageous to come to an agreement with New Zealand and Canada regarding the defence of British interests in the Pacific Ocean.

LONDON, January 23rd.

A New York message states amazing revelations have been made by the convicted incendiary Stein and have led to a number of arrests of minor insurance officials and others. It appears that Stein belonged to a gang which with the connivance of venal insurance inspectors insured worthless property and then set it on fire. It is calculated that one thousand fires can be traced to this gang. The devices used include sausage skins filled with benzine instead of meat.

THE DISCOVERY OF FORGED MONEY AT HONGKONG.

A Tokyo paper reports that the forged currency discovered in Tokyo and Hongkong was intended to be used by certain sections of the Chinese who are planning to start a second Revolution in Central China.

The Tokyo Asahi publishes an official telegram, dated the 5th instant, stating that at Poochow a plot to start a second Revolution has been brought to light, and the local Chinese authorities are now making inquiries with a view to tracing those responsible. The Governor-General there is guarded by troops from Hunan.

"GIRL" WITH GOLDEN HAIR.

MIDSHIPMAN'S TRICK ON JEALOUS ACTRESS.

The jealousy of a young actress was the cause of a highly amusing incident recently at a restaurant in Lisbon.

For some time a naval officer had been the accepted suitor of the actress, but she had broken off the engagement. The naval officer, with a beautiful girl, entered the restaurant one evening and ordered dinner for two. The couple sat at a small table and were observed talking together affectionately. Soon afterwards the actress entered. As her eyes fell on the officer and the girl she stopped short, but, regaining her self-possession, proceeded to a table and ordered dinner. She viewed with irritation and jealousy the two opposite, who, apparently oblivious of her presence, were engrossed in each other.

At last, unable to restrain herself at the sight of her rival's triumph, the actress rushed at the girl as she rose to leave the restaurant and seized her by her beautiful golden hair. To her intense astonishment the hair came away in her hands, with hat and veil attached to it, and the face of a midshipman from the officer's ship was revealed, amid roars of laughter from all present.

The agencies of foreign banks now in existence are to be recognized by the authorities, but they will be ordered to submit to the Department of Finance business reports from their next business year.—Japan Gazette.

THE FORGERY OF KWANTUNG CURRENCY.

A FOREIGN VICTIM IN YOKOHAMA.

In connection with the forgery by several Japanese of Chinese paper currency, the Japan Gazette of the 10th inst. says a Yokohama foreigner is said to have been victimized. He reported the matter to the Kaga-cho Police Station, which is now communicating with various quarters, especially with the Police at Moji, where the informant was victimized. It appears that the foreigner in question left Kaga-cho Station on October 20th for Moji, where he arrived the following day. Before proceeding to China he visited a Japanese exchange shop at Moji, where he obtained some Chinese currency, among which was a five-yen note, which was later discovered to be a forgery. Upon his return to Yokohama from China a day or two ago, the foreigner reported the matter to the Kaga-cho Police. It is believed that the note referred to is part of the currency forged by the Japanese now under arrest at Hongkong and Tokyo.

DEATH OF AN INDO-CHINA EXPLORER.

The death is announced at the age of eighty-three of M. Jean Dupuis, the explorer, who was the pioneer of French influence in Indo-China. M. Dupuis, after travelling for two years in Egypt, settled in 1889 as a merchant at Hankow. Anxious to discover a commercial route through Southern China, he explored the Red River as far as the frontier of Annam, and proved that it was navigable. On his return to France he was asked for an official mission to be sent to profit by his discovery, but his request was refused. He equipped at his own expense a flotilla of cargo boats and returned to Hankow, where he soon got into difficulties with the Annamite authorities. His flotilla was confiscated and he himself was compelled to leave Tonkin as the French Government was unwilling to support him. Eventually, however, these incidents resulted in the French expedition to Tonkin. As compensation for the loss of his flotilla, M. Dupuis received from the French Government the concession of a coal mine in that Colony, but it proved a complete failure, and the explorer died in great poverty. He was the author of several works on Indo-China.

THE DIARY OF LI HUNG CHANG.

LINES TO THE LIBERTY BELL.

FAREWELL TO AMERICA.

VII.

[We resume Li Hung Chang's Diary with the jottings after his arrival in Philadelphia.]—Philadelphia, the City of Brotherly Love; it is called also the City of the Cradle of American Liberty. I want to put down a few impressions now, for in a few days more I shall be commencing the long journey across the United States toward the Pacific Ocean and my beloved home. I am getting homesick for China, and although of late I have been sending brief despatches by cable to the Court, always with love and reverence for the illustrious Throne, I am as anxious to tell China about my triumphal journey in foreign lands as a first boy is to relate the antics of her first-born wife.

LI HUNG CHANG AS POET.

If New York is the noisiest, most mind-distracting, and elbow-rubbing place I ever saw, and Washington most beautiful and open—though I have no doubt my French friends would not thank me for saying this, especially considering the woods of Paris—Philadelphia is one of the most smiling of big cities. I think the place well named City of Brotherly Love. But I am going to invent a new title, which title I told the Mayor, and he said he would write it down, and call it the Place of a Million Smiles. That is almost poetic, but it is proper, for I have also written some lines on the Liberty Bell, which are yet to be re-written when I return to China.

[Whether Li Hung Chang ever re-wrote his lines upon the Liberty Bell, composed during his stay in Philadelphia, is not known. A careful search of his manuscripts and notes fails to reveal any further attempt to improve or revise the few original lines, although in several places in his memoirs of later date he refers to the Liberty Bell and his visit to Philadelphia.]

The poem to which he refers, and which has an excellent cadence and metre, according to Chinese standards, is extremely difficult of translation into English if any attempt is made to follow the author's rather involved thought. It may be rendered roughly as follows:—

To my eyes they did point out the symbol of Liberty, And to my ears they did direct the sound. It was only a sound of ding-dong, And it came from an instrument of brass made by man.

The bell did not ring to my ears; I could not hear the voice in my ears; But in my heart its tones took hold And I learned that its brassy tongue Even in silence told of struggles against wrong.

Those good sons of America Call the Liberty Bell ancient; But I who come from the oldest of the lands,

A student of the philosophy of the ages, Know that what this bell speaks Is of Heaven's wisdom: Millions of centuries before the earth was born.

It repeats the heart words of the gods; It repeats, only repeats; But let it do so to the end.]

In his prose regarding the Liberty Bell the Viceroy speaks again of its age, but in a much lighter vein:—

THE LIBERTY BELL.

Old Henry showed me a beautifully shaped old bell, which is in Independence Hall, and is called the Bell of Liberty; which means that at its ringing all men within sound of its voice know they are free. But they do not ring it any more, because it is cracked. Is liberty cracked also?

When was informed that it was considered "old" in fact, called the "Old Liberty Bell" I asked regarding its age, and some of the officials began looking quizzically one to another. The Governor of the State himself did not know its age, but finally some fellow with sharp eyes discerned a date on the symbol, whether inside or not I cannot say, and announced that it was some hundred or two hundred years old.

Ho! a hundred or two hundred (I forget which) years old! Ho! I would laugh in China if anyone should call anything old. It is simply an infant, still sucking. I laughed at the mention, and I told the Governor. He winked and said:—

"Yes, Viceroy, all the nations are sucking infants compared to your venerable land."

With that I bowed and thanked him, and I liked him for his speech.

THE TEA TAX.

The great celebration for our party in this city was held principally about the place where the Liberty Bell is guarded—a building called Independence Hall. It is a small structure, not half as large as the Hall of Sacred Records at Canton, nor even of the Temple of the Great Philosopher at the Forbidden City. Here it was that the first Assembly of American representatives met to declare war upon England and at freedom from her heavy taxes. The English taxed everything the Americans used almost, excepting the air and the water.

The worst tax of all was upon tea grown in China. The Americans were very fond of tea, and they wanted much of it. So England decided that she could raise large revenues by taxing the tea. Then the Americans threw the tea into the harbours, tax and all, and would drink nothing but milk and water, and whisky for a long time. Not much tea was drunk for eight years, when the war ended with England beaten. It was what she deserved. I would have any man who deprived me of my sou-chong.

THE SLEEPY TOWN.

I must not forget the Mayor of Philadelphia, the Honourable Mr. Warwick, who was a jolly fellow, wearing a silk hat and a perpetual smile. The smile suited his city. Mr. Honourable Mayor made one of the longest speeches I have heard on this trip, and he put me to sleep. Yes, I really fell into a deep doze during his oration, and it took roars of laughter to awaken me to the sense of my position.

When I opened my eyes I saw thousands of people laughing and clapping their hands, and at first I thought it must have been some very humorous or witty remark of the speaker's that had brought about such an extraordinary outburst of good nature. Then I saw that everybody was looking at me, including the Honourable Mayor himself. He was laughing with the rest! Of course, I felt a little embarrassed. Then the speaker said, half to me and half to the immense audience:—

"His Excellency does not like long speeches evidently, so I will cut mine short."

This being translated to me I asked my secretary to say to the Honourable Mayor that I did like long speeches, for during them I could have long sleeps. The Honourable Mayor repeated my words to his hearers and there was laughter and cheering for several minutes. Anyway, the Honourable Mayor finished what he had to say quickly.

But was it not humorous that in all my travels, however tired and worn I might be, I never went to sleep in public before?

LATE, SAME NIGHT.

To-night I visited the Union League, and was served a delightful Chinese dinner, with wines and tea from Canton. It was the best that my stomach has received since leaving home. A great number of prominent people were there. I have a complete list and will preserve it.

NEXT MORNING.

A PARTING INVITATION.

General Hastings, the Governor of this great State, called upon me this morning to bid me adieu, and to present one or two young ladies and several members of his staff. I gave the Governor a pressing invitation to visit me in China, and I told him that if he would come and spend half a year in the quiet of my home in Canton I would make him as pleased and comfortable as he would not ever want to return to the noise of Pennsylvania. He thanked me cordially, and said he would give the matter careful thought.

I am sure that Governor Hastings is by far the handsomest man I have seen in all these Western countries. He ought to hold the position of emperor or king, or at least be duke of a duchy. It was a pity that he did not appear in uniform, for he is a born general-in-chief in appearance, and of the most commanding presence.

I had several delicious American drinks called cocktails, and I asked Salang to find out just what ingredients were used and how they were made. There was just enough spice and sweetness to them to suit my taste, and I do not think they would hurt me if taken not too frequently.

I feel that I will sleep most calmly to-night.

AFTER THREE DAYS ON THE TRAIN.

CHANGES OF FIFTY YEARS.

Again I must think of Russia with its vast plains and heaven-reaching mountains. But here the parallel of thought must end, for with Russia all the wild and newer country is far to the east, while in the United States it is the West that is wide-spreading and new.

In this wonderful Western Empire of the American Union there is the same spirit of enterprise and business, with all modern progress, that there is along the seaboard of the Atlantic. And to think that fifty years ago there was not a settlement of stationary people in the hundreds of miles we have been travelling since we left the great river of America, the Mississippi.

Can it be true? Can it be that all these changes have taken place since I took my examinations for the Hanlin? It must be, for I have heard it from every one, and a whole nation cannot lie.

For hours and hours we travel, and see nothing but great ranches with cattle or vast stretches of country without a living man or woman or fowl. Then there will be a small town, then another, then another, until finally the train rushes through the outskirts of a big city and we are at a depot that makes one think again of New York, Chicago or London. And there are high buildings everywhere, so high that men look like children when seen from their roofs. Heaven help those country dwellers an earthquake comes!

SKY-SCRAPERS.

I cannot see, in spite of the explanations that have been made to me, what is gained by having most stop the clouds up so that they almost stop the clouds going by. Yes, I can see in New York, for New York is built upon an island, and the shippers and others do not want to go across rivers and bays to do their business. The city becomes crowded, and land is so valuable that those who own it send their edifices up into the air, which is free to use as high as they want to go.

Yes, I can understand New York's cloud-stoppers, but I cannot understand why these Western cities, with cheap land for hundreds of miles in all directions, will try to see how many great buildings they can crowd together in one place. Still, I suppose if I should write a whole volume and make a present of it for circulation among the business men of these cities they would not even thank me for my meddling. Anyway it is none of my concern, and besides, I do not expect to see the places again.

I care nothing for mere places unless there is some charm of the mind or heart to draw and hold me. And no place because of itself can have a charm upon my affections. There must be some human or ancestral association connected with a place if I am to think about it, or dream about it or write about it.

Moscow as Moscow is nothing to me, but as the place where I witnessed such overpowering ceremonies, where I saw the Tsaritsa, and where I presented to her the sacred ring sent by the illustrious and ever-virtuous Empress Dowager, it is a place enshrined deep in my heart.

And so with Essen—I hate its smoke and hear, but I love Essen because of Herr Krupp and admire Essen because of her cannons.

And so with Hawarden.

And so with Philadelphia and Washington and Mount Vernon.

And so with home—where our loved ones are!

headed them not, for my very soul was reaching out to the souls of China. I saw the Throne and I bowed my knee to their illustrious Majesties. I saw Tientsin and Hankow—all places I love and will ever love.

Returning to my apartments I had nothing more to say. I have seen the world in these months. Now all I ask is the supreme joy of kissing the earth of my native land.

"THE YELLOW JACKET."

A CHINESE PLAY IN NEW YORK.

The Times correspondent at Washington writes:—

Americans are fond of saying that their stage is hopelessly "commercial"; yet there are at least three plays now billed in New York which in England would not be reckoned in that class. One of these is The Yellow Jacket, by Messrs. Hazleton and Benrimo, at the Fulton Theatre, soon, it is said, destined to appear in London. A play "in the Chinese manner" could hardly be reckoned a "safe" commercial venture. Its production must surely be almost without precedent at any metropolitan theatre. There has been, of course, Mr. Forman's grim little piece The Cat and the Canary, but vivid as was the picture it gave, it was given in the European "manner" and dealt only with the Chinese of San Francisco.

And what does the Chinese "manner" mean? It means, among other things, that the whole performance is dominated by the "property man." Has the hero to climb a mountain? The property man advances with languid indifference, a cigarette between his lips, and piles a chair or two upon a table, and then the mountain! Is a blinding snowstorm required? Again he steps forward, his boredom still quite manifest, this time to scatter a few grains of rice about the stage. Should a character extend his arm to mark a significant speech it is as likely as not that the property man will pick up his feather brush and meditatively dust the extended sleeve. One cannot even die without him; when the hero's Fidus Achates is overcome by the blizzard the property man is at hand to cover the corpse with a white sheet, thoughtfully leaving the beard outside. Altogether Mr. Arthur Shaw makes a delightful figure of this property man—a kind of decadent factotum whose charm is all the greater from his complete silence.

There is also the Chorus, and Signor Perugini gets a vast deal out of this personage. Not a moralizing Sophoclean Chorus this, nor yet a martial Shakespearean Chorus, but a deliciously concocted Chorus, reminiscent now of Peter Quince and now of Eliza in Peter Pan. The production, the Chorus assures us, is wholly his; not that he wishes to deprive his "brothers of the Pear Garden" of their meed of praise. We may even call them before the curtain at the end of the play if we like, "provided" we "do not adulterate them too much." But he is fully conscious of their deficiencies; "should anything in the play," he says, "appeal to your sense of humour as strongly as it does to mine I beg of you to honourably smile. I shall not deem it a discourtesy, only does he say what the play treats of, but he gives us many a hint as to our own attitude, telling us, for instance, quite in the style of Mr. Henry James, that the property man is "for you quite intensely invisible." And yet, despite this naïveté, despite the primitive theatrical, from which the "ancestors" address their descendants on the stage, and by which the virtuous dead of the play mount to their rest with business like despatch; despite quaint sayings like "I am deserted by all, but my self-in-portance still remains," or "She died of her mother-in-law's accomplishments," or "Time has honourably pursued his venerable way," the actors time and again contrive to get a good deal of tragic emotion across the footlights.

To describe the whole plot would be unfair to the London productions; but, very briefly, it tells how Wu Hoo Git is brought up by the farmer who has been told to murder him (one thinks of Othello and Harpagus), and finally attains the throne, symbolized by the yellow jacket, many scenes later. Wu Hoo Git takes leave of her baby son, writing a farewell message in her blood upon his tiny Yellow Jacket, or to the death of the philosopher Git Hok Gar—comic as his "laying-out" is. Moreover, there is, every now and then, a suggestion of allegory which reminds us of the Shaving of Shagpat—the pilgrimage of Hoo Git ending with his attainment of felicity by the sacrifice of self. Yet this hint of a serious meaning is not allowed to interfere with the enjoyment of a good story with plenty of picturesque "incident" like Wu Hoo Git's fight with Kom Loi, the spider, or his encounter with Loy Gong, the god of thunder. Only it is just sufficiently suggested to throw a kind of wistful charm over the whole play. Altogether, when the curtain is raised for the "call," it is hard to obey the chorus' command not to "adulterate" his "brothers" too much.

"KEYHOLD TENURE."

There is a street of cottages at Crowland, South Lincolnshire, which at one time belonged (and some of them still belong) to no one but the actual holder of the key. Many years ago a person named Brothway left certain lands in trust for the poor of Crowland, and as soon as a labourer had sufficient money to build a house he applied for permission, which was granted by the trustees. That house was his because he built it, and because he held the keys that admitted him to it. After his death, if he left a widow in possession, the house was hers. If the owner died without relatives, the person who was fortunate enough to step in and take possession became the owner. The tenants in many instances have now taken advantage of the laws of enfranchisement, by which, for a small sum, they are enabled to take out a deed, which shows the property to be their own freehold. There are still some houses with "little deeds," and the people living in them have only the "keyhold tenure."
